Music instruction and performing opportunities

for children through adults

Music learning can be a lifelong journey, and to help begin that journey Central Michigan University's School of Music is dedicated to providing quality music instruction to the mid-Michigan area. Instructors are undergraduate and graduate students, selected based on their experience and interest, and with the approval of their applied music professor.

New this Year!

Piano Exploration and Comprehensive Musicianship

This one-semester course is open to 6-7 year old students who wish to learn to play the piano. All students will meet on Monday's from 4:15-5:15 p.m. The first 30-minutes of the class will be taught by Dr. Adrienne Wiley and will focus on general musicianship, theory, and ear training. The following 30-minutes will be taught by undergraduate and/or graduate piano pedagogy students and will provide each student with a private lesson. After the first semester of instruction, students may continue to study piano privately with their CMU student-teacher in subsequent semesters.

Program requirements:

- Students must have a piano or keyboard with 88 keys in their home.
- Students must be able to attend the entire Monday class (4:15-5:15 p.m.)
- Course materials will be an additional cost of approximately $25.00 payable to Dr. Wiley
- All students must be committed to the entire one-semester course
- Cost $200
- Limited enrollment
